Excerpt: .a bandmaster, has sued two prominent women of the city to recover $50 for breach of contract. A friend of the women regrets the notoriety, but she is as firm as adamant. She hired Mr. Lipski's men, and, as a member of the Musicians Federation, got them for $4 a piece; otherwise they would have cost $5 a piece. A Hungarian band was wanted with white suits, and the ability to play. Lo, the Conquering Hero Comes. It turned out that Mr. Lipski's men wore red suits and could not play the hero piece. So they were dismissed, and men were engaged, all clad in spotless white, who had summered and wintered with the immortal tune. When a band is formed in a village, the first thought is to procure handsome suits for the members. If there are summer cottagers they are called...
